PDS Twitter Exec

Do you know what Twitter is? If you do, then PDS needs you! We are looking for someone to take charge of the PDS Twitter account. It's a low maintenance job and you'll be the first to know all the UoA and PDS happenings. If you're keen, send us an email at fmhs-res-fellows@auckland.ac.nz

Money 101: Research budgeting

Are you applying for a grant? Do you have a grant? If you need extra tips and tricks for how to navigate the world of budgeting in academia, then this workshop is for you. Faculty Research Support (FIRST) will be sharing their knowledge on the do's and don'ts for creating and sticking to a research budget. Everyone is welcome. Date and time end of March/early April TBC.

See you later, (some) APCs

Great news, fellow researchers: The UoA has signed Read and Publish Agreements with four major publishers. This means that your publishing fees could be waived if you publish in Cambridge University Press, Springer, Oxford University Press, or Wiley. To qualify, the corresponding author must be affiliated with the UoA at the time of acceptance and have a UoA email address. Keep in mind that not all journals are covered and the number of manuscripts that can be published in a given journal each year may be capped. To see if a journal title is included in the agreement, or to find out the allocation cap check out the ResearchHub page.
